

Natalie Gochmour serves as an associate dean in the David Eccles School of Business and director of the Kem C. Gardner Policy Institute at the University of Utah. She also serves as the chief economist for the Salt Lake Chamber. In these roles she helps connect the Eccles School with the broader business community and shares applied economic and business research.

Gochmour's experience includes a diverse mix of public service and business experience. During her public service she advised Utah governors Norm Bangerter, Mike Leavitt and Olene Walker. She also served as a political appointee in the George W. Bush administration, serving as an associate administrator at the EPA and deputy to the secretary at Health and Human Services. For seven years she led the public policy endeavors of the Salt Lake Chamber. Gochmour writes regular columns for Utah Business magazine and the Deseret News.
